MUM-OF-4 MURDER: MAN, 45, IN COURT

By CHRIS MOSS, News Editor
chris.moss@hertsessexnews.co.uk

THE distraught family of a Harlow mum-of-four who suffered fatal injuries after being attacked in her own home have paid tribute to a "beautiful, lively young woman".

Claire Parrish (37) was found at the address in Copshall Close on Sunday night. She had been stabbed and beaten with a blunt object.

She was taken to Princess Alexandra Hospital but doctors were unable to save her life.

A provisional post mortem examination carried out on Tuesday found Ms Parrish, who was also a grandmother, had died as a result of severe internal bleeding caused by what police described as a "blunt force trauma" injury to her abdomen.

A 45-year-old man also found at the scene spent Sunday night at PAH receiving treatment for hand and facial injuries.

In a statement issued through Essex Police yesterday (Wednesday), Ms Parrish's family spoke of their loss.

"Claire was a loving mother of four children and a devoted nan," it read. "Claire herself was a beloved daughter, aunt and sister and was very close to all her family.

"She was a very beautiful, lively and very much loved young woman. Words cannot describe how amazing she was to all who knew her well."

"We are grieving terribly and we would ask please that we are left in private to do so. We are all feeling total shock and desperate sadness that our Claire has been tragically, and brutally, taken from us."

● A Harlow man appeared at Chelmsford Magistrates Court yesterday (Wednesday) charged with murdering Ms Parrish.

Mark Gold (45), of Copshall Close, was remanded in custody pending a preliminary hearing at Chelmsford Crown Court tomorrow (Friday).

Attack victim stabbed in the abdomen

A MAN in his 20s was treated in hospital after being stabbed during a late-night attack in Harlow.

Police called to the Brockles Mead area shortly after 11.20pm on Monday found the victim had sustained a minor stab wound to the right hand side of his lower abdomen. He was taken to Princess Alexandra Hospital.

The crime scene remained cordoned until late on Tuesday morning while forensics officers collected evidence.

NEW mums learned more about giving their babies the breast start in life when NHS staff and volunteers set up stall outside the Asda store in Harlow town centre. The team handed out information packs and chatted to families about the benefits of breastfeeding.

West Essex breastfeeding support worker Denise Dougherty, pictured with Emma Reeves and daughter Darcey, said feedback from new and expectant mums had been excellent.

"A lot of people aren't fully aware of the health benefits breastfeeding provides for both mother and child so it was very encouraging to have so many young mums stop to talk to us," she said.

"Breast milk provides all the essential nutrients a baby needs while helping to prevent diarrhoea, vomiting and other digestive problems, and can even protect against the development of eczema and obesity in later life."

"For mums, it can help prevent breast and ovarian cancer, and is also an excellent way of burning off the calories."

HARLOW MP Robert Halfon has praised the work of a school-based charity aiming to help struggling youngsters re-engage with their education.

Mr Halfon met with Catch 22 staff at Burnt Mill School in First Avenue, one of the sites where the charity operates in the town.

He was there to see for himself the impact their service has had on pupil attendance and attainment.

During the two-hour visit he also joined in with three classes and visited the school's new Chinese garden.

He also met nine Year 10 students who will be spending a month in Kenya next year. After, telling them about his work in Rwanda teaching English, he offered to help them raise funds for their trip.

"Burnt Mill School is an incredible school with pupils achieving some fantastic results," he said after his visit.

"I felt really inspired meeting the students, some of them who are being helped by Catch 22 and others who are acting as mentors to younger students.

"It is one of the best organisations there is that helps young people and I think it is brilliant that Catch 22 and Burnt Mill have teamed up in this way. I congratulate all those involved."

THE first in a series of 'pizza and politics' nights held by Harlow Labour Party has been hailed a great success after attracting over 35 attendees.

The evening, hosted by Labour's shadow education secretary Stephen Twigg and prospective parliamentary candidate Suzy Stride at The Square, was billed as an informal discussion group designed to give people the chance to air their views on the issues that matter to them. Aimed primarily at young voters, Ms Stride said she hoped the sessions would provide opportunities to raise concerns and share aspirations.

"For many young people politics is about something that is done by people who are not like them in a language that has no meaning," she said. "The evening was a fantastic opportunity for people young and old to engage with politics and politicians in a different way."

"Everyone said what a great evening it was and we will certainly be making it a regular feature."

Mystery of young woman's fatal fall from balcony

By COURT REPORTER

star@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A YOUNG woman who fell to her death from the sixth floor of a tower block in Harlow had been arguing with her partner shortly before the tragedy, an inquest heard.

However, Chelmsford Coroners Court was told that no-one saw what happened to Shannon Lawrence (23) in the crucial seconds before the fall.

Ms Lawrence – known locally as Shannon Jones – had spent the afternoon and evening of February 29 drinking socially with friends. They returned to her flat at Spring Hills Tower in Hobtoe Road at 11pm.

Coroner's office John Denham said: "An argument started between her and her partner and she exited the flat onto a walkway outside. She straddled the barrier on the walkway before coming back inside.

"A short time later she left the flat again and fell from a height on to the ground below. This fall was not witnessed although several people were in the flat at the time."

Ms Lawrence landed on a grass verge next to steps leading up from the car parking area. She was taken to Princess Alexandra Hospital where she died in the early hours of March 1 from multiple injuries.

The inquest heard that toxicology tests carried out after her death showed she had 241mg of alcohol in 100ml of blood – three times over the legal driving limit. There was also evidence she had taken cannabis.

Inspector David Richards, of Essex Police, told the inquest that there were no suspicious circumstances or anything to suggest a criminal offence had been committed.

"Various parties were intoxicated through drink or drugs and a number of people were present in the flat," he said. "No-one was saying there was any particular violent behaviour or anything like that, but there were some raised voices, a dispute and Shannon left the flat, slamming the door after her."

"Shortly after she was discovered on the floor near the car park."

The inspector continued: "It [the fall] was not witnessed. I came to the opinion she had either jumped or fell from a height."

In answer to a question from coroner Caroline Beasley-Murray, he said if any new information came to light he would actively pursue it.

Ms Lawrence had celebrated her birthday 10 days before her death. She worked as a barmaid at the Small Copper pub in Mompies Road.

Her mother, Ruth Mills, told the coroner she did not believe her daughter had killed herself, although she had concerns about the relationship she was in.

She said Shannon had confided in them that she wanted to leave her partner and stay with her family, but added: "I know she would not have taken her life over it. It's just that things don't add up."

Recording an open verdict, the coroner said she could not say it was either suicide or an accident.

"I am not satisfied she intended to take her own life," she said. "Did she topple over? No-one saw what happened in that crucial second or so. All the pieces of the jigsaw are not quite there."

Funding lifeline for homework club faced with threat of closure

A HOMEWORK club facing closure because of funding cuts will not be packing up its books just yet after securing a last-minute reprieve.

Julie Allen, long-term study co-ordinator of the Harlow Homework Club, found out last month that she was facing the prospect of being made redundant by Essex County Council as part of its cost-cutting measures.

The after-school club has been running at Harlow Library in the town centre for more than 13 years and is currently used by more than 180 pupils across Harlow.

But after local MP Robert Halfon lobbied the county council to rethink the plans and Harlow

College donated £2,000 to keep the club going, the popular service has been saved for at least another year.

This week Mr Halfon said: "The Homework Club is a genuine community service and Julie Allen's work is invaluable. "I was delighted to be able to help.

"In the last year alone she has helped over 180 children to study and progress at school. This is essential for Harlow pupils. We just couldn't let it vanish without a fight."

In a letter to Mr Halfon, county councillor Jeremy Lucas – who serves as cabinet member for customer services, environment and culture – said funds for the club had been allocated from the council's schools, children and families budget.

"This money, which amounts to £4,500, together with the £2,000 offered by Harlow College, will enable the Homework Club to remain open for the next year," he said.

"This welcome news means that pupils from Harlow will be able to continue to make use of the facility and allow time to explore other sources of funding for the future."

Firefighters stage third walkout

HARLOW firefighters began a 24-hour strike yesterday (Wednesday) in a row over proposed service cuts.

Members of the Fire Brigades Union walked out at 9am in protest at cost-cutting plans they claim will result in the loss of one in five frontline crews from stations across Essex.

It is the third in a series of strikes planned over the summer.

Essex FBU Brigade chairman Alan

Chinn-Shaw said: "Strike action is a last resort and we are calling only short periods of lawful strike to limit the risks to the public whilst highlighting the very serious concerns of frontline professionals."

Deputy Chief Fire Officer Adam Eckley said the service had "strong resilience arrangements" in place throughout the strike, which was due to end at 9am today (Thursday).

Hospital team launch search for radio star

By VICKY LANE

vicky.lane@hertsessexnews.co.uk

BUDGING singing sensations are being offered their chance to shine in Harlow's version of BBC talent show The Voice.

Harlow Hospital Radio, which is based at Princess Alexandra Hospital, is organising its own version of the TV competition – which sets out to judge contenders on their singing talent and not their appearance – in their studios next month.

Broadcast live on the airwaves, the Harlow Hospital Radio Star competition will require entrants to impress the three judges with their vocal talents during a blind audition. The panel will then indicate whether they think the contestant should go through to the next round.

It will then be up to the station's listeners to take over the judging role as they vote for the 10 finalists they wish to see compete for the title and a studio recording session during a live show at Victoria Hall Theatre in Old Harlow early next year.

"It is the first time we have ever conducted anything like this and we are really excited," said Andy who, as well as being one of the three judges, is also the station's chairman and programme controller. "As well as being a lot of fun it will give anyone in the area who thinks they have a good voice the opportunity to get their name out there and enjoy a bit of exposure.

"On top of being broadcast live on the radio, we will also be conducting interviews, putting videos and recordings online and maintaining an ongoing relationship with contestants with regular slots on the show."

Joining Andy on the judging panel will be Aaron Page, lead singer of local group The Pins who have played a number of festivals across Europe, and Jenn Holden, who was recently accepted for a place at the Italia Conti drama school.

Andy added: "Ultimately we would encourage anyone over the age of 16 who thinks or has ever been told they have a good voice to come along and give it a go."

"Not only would they be supporting a great cause but they will also be in with a chance of claiming the title of Harlow Hospital's Radio Star."

For an application form, email your name and 'HHR Voice' to harlowhospitalradio@live.co.uk.

Richard spurred on by kindness and generosity

SUPPORT from the community is helping a Harlow athlete to overcome his disappointment at missing out on a place in the London Paralympic Games. Wheelchair racer Richard Chiassaro said continued donations and backing from local groups had made him determined not to give up on his dream.

The 30-year-old, who has only been professionally racing for three years, recently received a £1,500 cheque from the Rotary Club of Harlow and a £750 donation raised by the Harlow Lions Club at a quiz evening.

"Though I am gutted to have not made the team I won't be giving up any time soon," said Richard. "Everyone has been so generous with their donations, which all goes towards funding my training and equipment, and given me so much support that it makes me want to stick at it. I am really appreciative."

Harlow Lions Club secretary Ronni Ayres said the club had agreed to help Richard because they had been so impressed by his dedication to his sport.

"Members were also very impressed by the training he provides to groups of disabled young people in a variety of activities for no money," she said.

"It was agreed that we would give Richard as much support as we could and this was demonstrated by all of those attending the quiz night."

Harlow Rotary Club spokesman Steve Morrison added: "There is no funding for athletes in training until they get accepted onto Team GB, and many of them never actually reach their full potential as a result. We were keen to lend a hand."

CHEQUE MATES:

Bikers rev up in aid of St Clare

A GROUP of bikers raised more than £200 for St Clare Hospice when they took part in a 30-mile charity ride.

Staff at the CAMRider motorcycle training centre, which is based at Harlow Greyhound Stadium, organised the fundraiser event as a way of thanking the hospice for the care it provided for family members.

Instructor Seb Abbott said: "My brother Damian and mother Gillian were both cared for at St Clare. It is a nice place with lovely staff and it is run very well."

"As a charity it relies on fundraising to provide its services."

Maria Tillett-Hayes, corporate relationship manager for St Clare, said: "Some 40 motorbikes being ridden through our catchment area certainly helped raise our profile and certainly turned a few heads!"

More support for foodbank

A SELF-storage company is supporting Harlow Foodbank by choosing it as charity of the year. Lok'nStore, in Edinburgh Way, has already been providing free storage space for the charity, which provides food for local families in times of crisis, since 2009.

Now the company has decided to increase its support for the foodbank. Harlow site manager Anne-Katrin Kerle said they were delighted with the new partnership.

"To kick-start our relationship we will make a £25 donation every time the charity directs a customer to Lok'nStore and they make a reservation," she said. "We also have some exciting fundraising activities planned."

Gary Knott, director of community services for Harlow Foodbank, thanked the company for their ongoing support.

"We greatly appreciate the help we receive from Lok'nStore, which enables us to support more local people in crisis with emergency food," he said.

Hospice lottery

THE winner of the £1,000 prize in the St Clare Hospice lottery drawn on Friday, July 13 is ticket holder 410804, who lives in Harlow.

The second prize of £100 goes to the holder of ticket number 535055, who also lives in Harlow.

Architect of 1960s award-winning estate dies

A LEADING post-war architect who designed Harlow's award-winning Bishopton estate has died at the age of 81 following a long battle with illness.

Michael Neylan, a graduate of the Kingston School of Architecture, first visited the town in the early 1960s after entering a competition run by Harlow Development Corporation to design a new housing estate at Great Pardon.

The contest attracted considerable interest and some 60 architects submitted entries, but it was Mr Neylan's striking design for the high density 239-dwelling scheme that convinced judges he was the man for the job.

His concept was to place a piazza surrounded by a ring of flats and maisonettes at the highest point of the site, with a series of pedestrian lanes, patio houses and green wedges then radiating outwards.

The sloping lanes made the scheme almost Moorish in character and the area soon became known locally as "The Kasbah".

The patio houses in Charters Cross were the first to be built and the whole scheme was completed by 1966, later winning a Civic Trust Award, a Housing Medal and a prestigious Housing Design Award.

Mr Neylan's long-time business partner Bill Ungeil, recalled his close friend's determination to do things his way.

"Harlow New Town was full of schemes of a traditional and repetitive nature which were straightforward to build, and the question we were frequently asked was why we cannot make Neylan's scheme more like other estates?

"Michael was having none of that and for this we should all be grateful, because Bishopton was a remarkable achievement and is still a yardstick for other young architects in the housing field."

Mr Neylan is survived by his wife, Dr Catherine Neylan, two daughters and a son.

Club floored by baseball thieves

ATTEMPTS to revive a baseball club have come to an abrupt halt after thieves stole most of the equipment.

Harlow Baseball Club secretary Paul Wadley was dismayed to discover that two storage units at the group's training pitch on Northbrooks Recreation Ground had been ransacked.

The stolen items – including kit, training equipment and maintenance gear worth

By VICKY LANE
vicky.lane@hertssesexnews.co.uk

thousands of pounds – had been collected with the intention of forming a new youth team, the Harlow GreenSox, this summer.

"It's a real blow to us all," Mr Wadley told the Star. "People have actually made the effort to climb over a 10ft fence topped with barbed wire and remove two very heavy padlocks.

"Thousands of pounds worth of baseball equipment intended to benefit kids in this town has been stolen. It is a real shame."

Mr Wadley said the club had been feeling optimistic about the new team after receiving a good response from youngsters in the town.

"I have been trying to resurrect the same level of interest in baseball amongst young people in Harlow that Albert Hobdell, who founded the club over six years ago, achieved before he had to take more of a backseat last year," said Mr Wadley.

"After holding two open days earlier this year and following the launch of our new website, we had received a good response but everything will have to go on hold now."

Other equipment taken from the containers included promotional T-shirts and baseball caps sporting the 'Harlow GreenSox' logo, baseballs, hard hats, body protectors, netting and a gazebo.

Mr Hobdell, who had helped to secure funding for a lot of the kit, said he was "gutted" to hear of the theft.

"It has always been about helping children in Harlow," he said. "Baseball is a worthwhile sport which encourages good discipline and is also a lot of fun. I am disgusted that someone could just take that away from the kids in this town."

Mr Wadley added: "We hope to get most of the equipment replaced through our insurance but it will probably take a while."

"In the meantime I would urge anyone who thinks they may have come across the equipment being sold locally or online to inform the police. That way there may still be a chance of catching those responsible."

Police confirmed they are investigating the theft and asked anyone with information to call Harlow police station on 101.

Police hunt man who accosted two women

A MAN suspected of attempting to assault two women in Harlow is being sought by police.

The first incident happened in a pedestrian subway in Tripton Road, between 4.30-4.45pm on Monday, July 2.

A woman in her 20s was walking through the underpass when a man approached her from behind, grabbing her and attempting to drag her into nearby bushes. However, she managed to struggle free and escape.

The second took place at noon three days later on a footpath in Fifth Avenue.

A man fitting the description of the suspect in the first incident again approached a woman from behind and attempted to grab and drag her towards bushes.

Officers are currently preparing an e-fit likeness of the suspect compiled from descriptions given by the victims. In the meantime, they are advising women to take extra care while walking through the town.

"Please try to stay in areas where there are plenty of people or walk with one or more friends or colleagues," said a spokesman. "Do not walk in remote areas on your own and always tell someone close to you where you are going and when you should be back."

Anyone with any information about either incident should contact Harlow police on 101 or Crimestoppers on 0800 555111.

SIR, Last Thursday Harlow's Labour-run council was delighted to safeguard Pets' Corner as a hugely popular family facility free to residents.

Staff, Friends of Pets Corner and supporters had been on tenterhooks since the Tory administration placed staff at risk last Christmas. They were later warned that all funding would be withdrawn after September unless another provider could take over. That failed to happen.

The new administration will encourage all promising partnerships with schools, colleges, friends and a falconry initiative. A successful Lottery bid would greatly enhance educational facilities and opportunities.

We appreciate the valuable, indeed essential, support of friends and committed volunteers working alongside professional staff and we'll be working with them to reduce costs while ensuring a long-term future for Pets' Corner.

The previous administration only allowed one year's funding for The Playhouse. No similar theatre could survive without subsidy; core funding is essential. We recognise the importance of the theatre as a cultural and educational centre embracing a host of active community groups involved in music, dance and drama. We're committed to keeping it open.

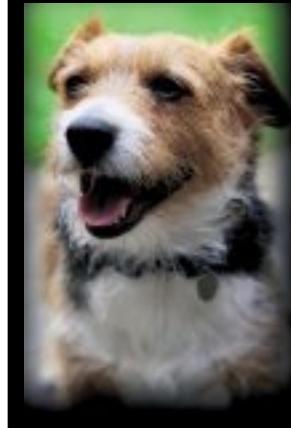

Discussions with a charitable trust will continue to explore partnership arrangements in line with similar theatres.

As we predicted, there were no expressions of interest in running our paddling pools, also under threat. We want to continue to provide family-friendly paddling pools where possible, albeit at reduced costs, ready to enjoy in the summer.

The council is faced with serious financial difficulties because of Government cuts. We want to maintain existing free access, where it exists, to the public and we are therefore very pleased at the extended opening times to five days a week at Harlow Museum, with full volunteer support.

We're doing all we can to safeguard services

Photo of the week

THIS week's photograph was taken by pet owner David Somerville, of Hookfield, Harlow.

"It's a picture of my dog Eddie," he writes. "He's a Jack Russell / Yorkshire Terrier cross aged six."

"He was making the most of the one day of summer on July 5. We'd just returned from a long walk along the cycle tracks."

● Do you have a photograph taken in Harlow that you think is good enough to feature in the Photo of the Week section? If so, we would love to see it.

Email a high resolution copy in jpeg format along with a brief description of your photograph along with when and where it was taken and your name and address to star@hertsessexnews.co.uk. Please insert 'Photo of the Week' in the subject line.

Labour gives an assurance that we'll work hard with the local community to ensure a long-term sustainable future for our valued discretionary services. We want to make a difference.

Jean Clark (Deputy Leader, Harlow Council)
Civic Centre, Harlow

No idea and no ideas

SIR, When the Conservatives set the council tax in February we announced £20,000 for each ward for street scene improvements, recognising that the local environment was a major issue everywhere.

The idea was that we would consult with the residents to find their priorities and how they wanted the money spent.

The only local issue Labour campaigned on during the elections was consultation. So when they came to power in May they had a fully funded scheme ready to implement for every part of the town.

Three months on they were challenged by a member of the public as to where this money was. In reply they blustered they had no idea really on how to consult with the public, but they would ask local councillors.

After 10 years in opposition Labour have only one policy and they don't even know what to do with that. Is it any wonder people are saying Labour have no idea and no ideas?

Cllr Simon Carter (Conservative)

Walk dog without fear

SIR, Last week you published a letter from a dog owner who wrote how their pet was attacked by an aggressive dog which was not on a lead and how it has left them fearful of walking their animals. I completely understand their worry for their beloved pet and they are certainly not alone in their fear.

However, take heart that the majority of dog owners in our town are responsible. Of course there are obviously those who are not and this is an issue which seems to crop up and is continually brushed under the carpet by the authorities.

Responsible owners should not feel apprehensive about taking their pets out.

Defending our town

SIR, Now that the Gilden Way planning inquiry is over I think we should record our thanks and appreciation for the members of the public for their attendance and contributions defending our town and its green wedges.

The fact that Sir Frederick Gibberd opposed the development of this land was quoted and his Masterplan defended. A good effort by all concerned. Let's hope we now get the right result.

Ron Bill
Upper Park, Harlow

Do as I say, not as I do

SIR, I think Cllr Jon Clempner needs to get his own house in order before he starts to dictate to everyone else ("We must do more to keep town tidy", July 12).

I have seen council employees with their ID badges swinging from their necks simply discard cigarette butts on the floor around the town rather than in the bins provided. They need to be reminded they are serving the public and always in the public eye.

This also goes for drivers of Kier Harlow vehicles who flick cigarette butts and food wrappers out of the windows. I report it but nothing gets done.

Two years ago I took a photo of a dustman driving over a wooden bollard on a grassed area outside my flats whilst on a mobile phone. Recently a grass cutter drove into that same bollard, breaking it loose and tossing it to one side.

It seems to be a case of do as I say and not as I do.

MY VIEW FROM WESTMINSTER

By Robert
Halfon
MP for Harlow

We must do more to end these rip-off fuel charges

REGULAR Star readers will know that I have been pushing very hard, along with the www.PetrolPromise.com campaign, for cheaper petrol and diesel.

Fuel prices are still too high. They are crushing Harlow businesses and are a poverty trap.

Over the past two years my campaign has had some success. To its credit, the Government cut fuel duty by 1p - for the first time in decades - in 2011. It froze it again in January this year and has now pledged to freeze it again in August. This has put more than £144 back into the pockets of every motorist in Harlow this year.

But there is still a problem with the big oil companies who have been accused of price-fixing and market manipulation. In Germany, Austria and America they are taking action. Britain is lagging behind.

This is keeping prices high at the pumps. In Parliament, I have tabled a motion backed by 65 other MPs calling for a tough investigation by the Office of Fair Trading. If the allegations of oil fraud are true, there must be prosecutions and convictions.

Ripping off Harlow families is criminal and we mustn't let them get away with it.

That is also why I am trying to change the law and am pressing the Government to make fuel prices more transparent. For example, we should see how much duty we are paying and how much is actually spent on roads on every single fuel receipt when you fill up the family car.

At the moment you only see "fuel + VAT", hiding the astronomical amount of duty that is going to the Government. Also the scandal of under-investment in our roads is hidden.

Far more of fuel duty should be spent on sorting out Harlow's congestion, especially Edinburgh Way, which is jammed almost every single rush hour.

LAST month I learned that the study co-ordinator of the Harlow Homework Club, Julie Allen, was at risk of redundancy, despite having done a fantastic job for 13 years. This was because of cutbacks at Essex County Council.

The Harlow Homework Club, which is used by more than 180 school pupils of all ages, was threatened with closure. I intervened and started a campaign to save the club. All options were looked at, including a possible social enterprise bid with Rainbow Services.

In response to my appeal, there was a generous donation of £2,000 from Colin Hindmarch, principal of Harlow College. I was also able to persuade the council to continue some funding for at least one more year.

This has saved the club for the next 12 months at least and I was delighted to be able to help. The Homework Club is a genuine community service and Julie Allen's work is invaluable. We just couldn't let it vanish without a fight.

Mr Hindmarch in particular deserves credit as it was his crucial donation of £2,000 that made this rescue possible, as well as county councillors Jeremy Lucas and Stephen Castle for finding the rest of the funds. They deserve our thanks.

Drivers feel squeeze on space for parking

By CHRIS MOSS, News Editor
chris.moss@hertsessexnews.co.uk

CAR owners in Harlow are being forced to squeeze their vehicles into some of the smallest parking spaces in the UK, new research has revealed.

A report by insurance firm LV= has found that the average size of residential parking bays has shrunk by nine per cent over the past 10 years, with Harlow drivers fighting over the least amount of space per vehicle outside of London.

During the same period, the number of vehicles on Britain's roads has shot up by 15 per cent while the average car is now around 14ft 1in long - almost six inches longer than in 2001.

Coupled with a council-backed rise in the number of restricted parking zones across Harlow in recent years, space is now at a premium with residents finding it increasingly difficult to find adequate parking space near their homes.

According to the survey, 11 per cent of drivers said they had been forced to park illegally near their home as a result, with around a third subsequently fined an average of £92 each.

LV= car insurance managing director John O'Rourke said: "Motorists are becoming increasingly squeezed when it comes to parking and in some areas the average space available is only a few centimetres longer than the average car."

"When space is particularly tight, drivers must take greater care when parking to avoid damaging their own car or those around them and risking expensive repairs or a claim against them."

But Councillor Jon Clempner, Harlow Council's portfolio holder for environment, said the council was not to blame for the town's parking problems.

"When the town was built less than one in three homes had a car. Today it is common for households to own three to four cars and people now take work vehicles home."

"These are the main causes of the residential parking problems in Harlow. The size of modern vehicles has also contributed by cutting down the available roadside parking space."

"Tackling residential parking has long been an issue for the council and there are no simple solutions. However, we have set up a working group to identify ways that town-wide parking problems can be alleviated and a report is due to be considered by the council in the autumn."

Burglars force front doors to gain entry

POLICE are investigating three break-ins in which burglars gained entry by forcing open the front door.

The first took place in Ryecroft, Harlow, last Tuesday (July 10). The thieves stole computer equipment, a television and cash before driving away in a blue Citroen C3 belonging to the homeowner.

Two days later burglars entered a block of flats in Kingsland and forced their way into one of the properties. They made off with a small quantity of jewellery.

The third break-in happened some time between Sunday, July 8 and Saturday, July 14 when the front door of a house in Tunmeade was forced open. Although the property was ransacked, nothing was taken.

Anyone with information about any of the break-ins should contact detectives at Harlow police station on 101.

Alex has part to play at Olympic ceremony

LONDON will be thrust into the global spotlight during the Olympic opening ceremony next week and a Sawbridgeworth woman will be right at the heart of it. Alex Alma (54) has been selected to play a country dweller in artistic director Danny Boyle's vision of a green and pleasant land during the ceremony.

Alex, pictured right, who works as a senior executive assistant at Pitney Bowes in Harlow, beat hundreds of hopefuls to land the part. "You could hear me squeal all the way down the corridor at work when I found out," she said.

She has been rehearsing hard since May and is now attending practice every other day in the run up to the ceremony next Friday (July 27).

"We're getting really excited about it," she said. "At the weekend we found out that Danny Boyle had to cut some of our stuff and shorten the show and a lot of people are upset about that, but you have to carry on and do your best." Alex will make her entrance into the Olympic Stadium at 8.54pm and finish at about 9.10pm, after which she will have to leave the Olympic Park and watch the rest of the show on television.

PASSMORES ACADEMY Some of the town's older residents were taken on a trip back in time when the Traceys Road school hosted a tea dance as part of the Queen's diamond jubilee celebrations.

More than 100 guests from local sheltered housing and members of the school's silver surfers club were invited to the afternoon of 1940s music, dance and tea organised and run by the students.

Some prepared the mouthwatering spread of tea, sandwiches and cakes for their guests while others acted as waiters and waitresses or offered their services as dance partners. Singing group The Three Belles performed many war-time classics.

Foundation learning co-ordinator Dawn Moore said the dance had gone so well they now hoped to make it an annual thing.

"It was such an amazing evening and I am so proud of all our students who worked so hard to make it such a success," she added.

BUSY BEES NURSERY

An Olympics-themed afternoon saw children, parents and special guests take part in their own torch relay.

The children were joined by champion rower Francesca Jus-Burke and Harlow Council chair Maggie Hulcoop to cheer on the Busy Bee mascot as he arrived at their nursery in Greenway with the specially made torch.

Children and staff then received medals and certificates in recognition of their hard work completing the Golden Mile Challenge to raise money for the Dame Kelly Holmes Legacy Trust.

"Even though the weather wasn't on our side we all still managed to have a really lovely day," said nursery manager Louise Christie. "I am particularly proud of all our children and staff for completing their Golden Mile Challenge."

STEWARDS ACADEMY

Budding thespians entertained staff, parents and fellow schoolmates with their end-of-year show with a twist.

Rather than putting on the usual single annual lower school production, students decided to perform two plays acted by Year 7 and 8 pupils and directed by peers from Years 10 and 11.

The two productions – The Perils of Pauline and Granny and the Wolf – were also staged for Year 6 pupils due to start at the Parnall Road school in September, as part of their taster day.

Drama teacher Di Johnson said: "It is wonderful to see such a wealth of emerging talent both on stage and in directorial roles. Students did a fantastic job and were thoroughly entertaining."

FAWBERT AND BARNARD PRIMARY

Pupils are preparing to say goodbye to some new feathered friends after welcoming two goslings and a duckling into their classroom this term.

Norman the duckling and goslings George and Sparkle were hatched in an incubator set up by Year 4 children at the London Road school at the beginning of the summer term. The pupils then took it in turns to look after their new classroom pets while monitoring their development in lessons.

"The children have all thoroughly enjoyed watching and holding the birds," said teacher Laura Bland.

"Sadly the time has now come for them to leave the class, although the children were pleased to know that they would be going to a new home on a smallholding. We'll miss them."

Head girl Gabby given tour of 10 Downing Street

IT was case of 'Gabby, meet Gabby' when the head girl of Passmores Academy was introduced to the Prime Minister's press secretary during a visit to 10 Downing Street. Accompanied by Harlow MP Robert Halfon, student Gabby Burton met press secretary Gabby Bertin before being taken on a private tour of the PM's official residence. The pair then posed for photographs in the Cabinet Room and outside Number 10.

Mr Halfon, who organised the visit after meeting the teenager at the official opening of Passmores Academy earlier this year, said: "It was an amazing morning going round Downing Street. Even as an MP I had not seen some of the rooms we went into."

He added: "Gabby is wonderful head girl and a tribute to Passmores. I was really pleased to take her and her family to Parliament and to Number 10; it was a day that we will all remember."

The two Gabbys are pictured with Mr Halfon at the front door of No 10.

Couple's ashes to be reunited for eternity

THE family of a man whose ashes are buried in a Lincolnshire churchyard have been given permission to have them exhumed and reinterred next to his recently deceased wife in Harlow.

Mark Bishop, Chancellor of the Diocese of Lincoln and a judge of the Church of England's Consistory Court, has given the go-ahead for the exhumation of Alan Peglar's cremated remains and their reburial at Parndon Wood Cemetery.

Special permission had to be sought because the normal legal rule is that Christian burial in consecrated ground should be final and the remains should not be disturbed.

But in a petition supported by the vicar of Bourne Abbey Church Father Chris Atkinson, Mr Peglar's children applied to have their late father's cremated remains exhumed and reinterred in Harlow where their mother's cremated remains were interred following her death in September 2011.

They argued that Mr and Mrs Peglar had lived in Essex and only moved to Bourne in 2007. Shortly afterwards, Mr Peglar became ill and when he died in August 2008 his remains were buried in the churchyard of Bourne Abbey.

When Mrs Peglar fell ill and passed away two years later, her ashes were interred in a family plot at Parndon Wood Cemetery.

Ruling that the circumstances of the case were sufficiently exceptional to grant the consistory court's permission for the exhumation, the judge said: "This application can be granted on the basis that Mr Peglar's ashes be placed in a family plot together with Mrs Peglar's ashes."

"The condition of this exhumation is that they are being placed together in one place. It is because this is an application for a family grave that it is granted."

He said that Mr and Mrs Peglar's links with Bourne had been shortlived and that the whole focus of the family was in the Harlow area. The couple's immediate family all lived nearby and they wished to be able to visit their parents' graves together.

However, he added: "If the application had been simply on the basis that it was inconvenient for the family to visit Bourne or distressing because of the associations, this would not be sufficient to disturb the grave where the presumption in Christian burial is permanence."

Savour flavour of a Vinney's burger

vicky.lane@hertsessexnews.co.uk

DID you ever treat yourself to a Vinney's after a heavy night out or a long day's shopping?

This picture of the popular mobile burger bar, usually based in Market Square, was passed to Nostalgia by Lesley Green Ding after she received a good response when she posted it on a Facebook group.

"Those burgers were the best ever," she said. "I loved to have a Vinney burger on a Saturday after buying clothes and even had cravings for them when I was pregnant!"

A few members from the Facebook group recalled Vinney's being a regular stopping point on their way to the Odeon cinema around the corner in West Gate or on the way home from Tiffany's, Whispers or The Birdcage.

Lorna Twiner said: "I used to sit on the wall with the girls after Whispers on a Saturday and can still almost taste the onions! We'd wait to watch the inevitable punch-up that always seemed to happen."

Star receptionist Carol Howorth said that anyone who hadn't had a Vinney's burger "hadn't lived".

"We used to always go out after Tiffany's," she said. "Everyone would pile up by Vinney's and for us it was always all about the pineapple burgers."

Although Lesley was unsure of the identity of the other men in the picture, one member of the Facebook group suggested the chap enjoying a drink used to own the plant and flower stall in the market.

"In the good old days Harlow had a really good market with food, clothes haberdashery, sweets, jewellery, babies clothes and so on," she said. "There was even a man who used to throw crockery up in the air and then caught it again before selling it! It was a common sight for the market where showmanship helped to sell goods."

Another member – Paul Harrison – said he believed owner Vinney Hughes was still in Harlow.

"Vinney Hughes was running Vincent's Foods and distributing burgers and so on from his premises in Templefields," Paul wrote. "The company is still going strong but I suspect he may have taken a back seat these days. It has been about 10 years since I last saw him."

● Do you know any of the people in the picture or do you have some stories to share about your experiences as a customer of Vinney's? Write to Nostalgia, 6 West Gate, Harlow, CM20 1JX or email vicky.lane@hertsessexnews.co.uk.

The curtain is about to go up on the newly revamped Odeon cinema which is currently being converted into a multi-screen complex. With an increased seating capacity of 423, the new cosier Screen One is opening just in time for the screening of Police Academy IV.

A discarded cigarette end could have started a fire at Moot House in The Stow which caused £100,000 worth of damage to the listed building. Repairs to the 146-year-old three storey structure, which is home to the Mark Hall and Nettewell Community Association, are expected to take 10 months.

Water shortages in parts of the county brought on by the sudden heatwave have yet to affect Harlow. A spokesperson for Lea Valley Water said that although they were asking people to always use water sensibly, no restrictions had been enforced.

Close encounters with birds of prey

PEOPLE with a taste for the high-life can spread their wings at a new falconry centre in Harlow Town Park.

Harlow Falconry, run by Old Harlow resident Sarah-Jane Anthony, gives members of the public the opportunity to handle, train and fly birds of prey from its base at Pets' Corner.

The centre also works closely with schools and local community and voluntary groups to help youngsters to learn more about animal husbandry, with training courses available for those looking to secure qualifications in falconry.

"I've been fascinated by falconry ever since watching a show at the age of seven but there was never anywhere in Harlow or the surrounding area where I could get involved," said Sarah-Jane.

"I set up Harlow Falconry to give people living in an urban area the opportunity to learn more about this historic pursuit. The interest and feedback we've had since opening has proved it's not only something those living in rural areas can appreciate."

She added: "It's a great way to learn more about animal husbandry and training, and it can really help build self-confidence - there are so many skills to pick up!"

Rape accused overwhelmed by end of his prison ordeal

A MAN who has spent nine months behind bars after being accused of rape and attempted rape walked free from Chelmsford Crown Court on Friday after being officially cleared of all charges against him.

James Gormley (30), of Freshwaters, Harlow, gave a victory sign as he was hugged by his mother and sister outside the court.

"I'm overwhelmed it's over," he said. "It's not a very pleasant experience in prison but I tried to make it as pleasant as possible. And I'd like to thank my family for supporting me."

The alleged offences were said to have been committed in September 2009 but Mr Gormley was not arrested until more than a year later in December 2010.

When he stood trial back in March, a jury failed to reach a verdict on any of the charges against him.

A second trial was then held at which he was cleared of rape and attempted rape, but once again the jury failed to reach a verdict on two further rape charges.

Finally, on Friday, a hearing to decide whether there should be a third trial was told the Crown Prosecution Service would not be seeking a re-trial on the other two charges.

Christine Agnew, prosecuting, told Judge Charles Gravewicke it was not in the public interest to proceed with a retrial, to which the judge replied: "I understand and I agree."

He formally found Mr Gormley not guilty of the two rape allegations after Miss Agnew offered no evidence on both charges, telling him: "As far as the court is concerned you are free to go."

However, he imposed an indefinite restraining order on Mr Gormley in the light of telephone calls and text messages claimed to have been sent to his alleged victim, banning him from contacting the woman or going into the road where she lives.

Ms Martin added: "It is important that our hospitals run effectively at all times and that includes during the Olympics."

"For that reason it is important staff and patients alike arrive at their place of work and treatment in good time, which means taking account of potential travel disruption."

PAH ready to cope with rise in patient activity during Games

HOSPITAL chiefs are urging Harlow residents to plan ahead when accessing local health services during the Olympics.

As the designated hospital for tourists flying into Stansted Airport and spectators at several sporting events, medical staff at Princess Alexandra Hospital are anticipating a significant rise in the number of patients admitted throughout the period of the Games.

In a bid to minimise the extra burden placed on both staff and resources, hospital trust bosses are advising patients not requiring emergency treatment to contact their GP or local pharmacy instead of attending the accident and emergency department.

Chief operating officer Jules Martin said: "To have the chance to play our part in the Olympics and Paralympics is a huge honour for the trust and our staff so it is essential we plan accordingly."

"We have been working with LOCOG (London Organising Committee of the Olympic Games) for many months now to ensure we have measures in place to accommodate any increase in activity and disruption caused by the Games.

"However, it is still important members of the public are aware of the different NHS services available to them before they attend the hospital. A&E is only for emergency and seriously ill patients."

With widespread travel disruption expected across the region during London 2012, patients are also being advised to check for road closures and public transport service alterations before setting off for hospital appointments.

Ms Martin added: "It is important that our hospitals run effectively at all times and that includes during the Olympics."

For that reason it is important staff and patients alike arrive at their place of work and treatment in good time, which means taking account of potential travel disruption."

Pair threaten shops centre security staff

SECURITY staff at the Harvey Centre were threatened in the early hours of Monday by two men demanding money.

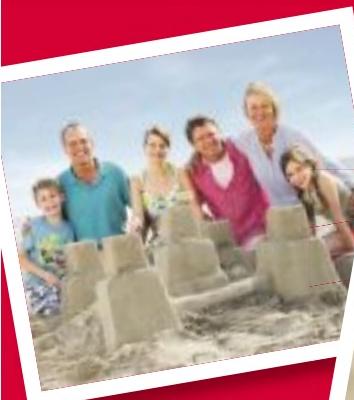

The pair confronted the guards after entering the town centre mall at about 3am but fled empty-handed when police were called.

Harvey Centre manager Bryan Young said: "This was a very serious, though thankfully rare, incident."

"Our customer service team responded very professionally and demonstrated great bravery, remaining calm throughout and calling for assistance from the police. The police responded very quickly and began their investigation immediately by taking stills from the CCTV footage."

Police have confirmed they are still examining CCTV images to see if they can identify the two men, who are described as black and wearing masks and hoodies.

Next stop – space!

HOLIDAYMAKERS could soon be taking a trip into space after a British businessman revealed plans to launch the world's first space shuttle for tourists.

More than 500 people - including Hollywood stars Brad Pitt and Angelina Jolie - have reportedly bought tickets for a seat on board the Virgin SpaceShip2, which will take passengers to the edge of the Earth's atmosphere.

Each flight will provide space for a pilot and up to five passengers, who will blast off from a special launchpad in New Mexico and travel to a height of 94 miles.

When the shuttle reaches its highest point, those on board will be able to experience zero gravity and float around the cabin while taking in the incredible views of the planet below them. The SS2 will then become a glider and gently bring the space tourists back down to Earth.

The first flight is expected to take off in 2016, with Virgin Galactic boss Sir Richard Branson and his two children among the passengers.

But before you start packing for your own trip into space you'd better start saving your pennies - because each flight will cost a whopping £100,000!

Sir Richard, who is also behind the development of a new air-launched rocket designed to deliver small satellites into orbit, told reporters: "Going into space is a hard business - it keeps my mind buzzing. "Virgin Galactic's goal is to revolutionise the way we get to space. I'm immensely proud of what we have already achieved."

Ray's monitor alarm is a stroke of genius

A HARLOW-based technology firm is hoping for global success following the launch of an innovative new care device.

The motion sensitive A-OK Monitor has been designed to give the elderly and vulnerable independence while providing peace of mind to their loved ones by alerting a relative or carer when it fails to detect movement over a set period of time. Linked to a passive infra red monitor installed in the home, the device uses technology similar to an intruder alarm but features a SIM card that instantly sends a text message or phone call to up to five pre-set telephone numbers when triggered.

It can also be set up to monitor changes in room temperature. Customers can choose from a range of optional extras that include personal pendant alarms, bathroom and door sensors and a carer verification system.

Inventor Ray Higgs, from Flex Meadow-based firm Silent Partner Technologies Europe Ltd, said the inspiration for the groundbreaking product had come from personal experience.

"I first had the idea a few years ago after my dad had a stroke," he told the Star. "He begged me not to put him into a care home, but being run off my feet with work and five kids I was worried that I wouldn't

Firm's first auction attracts lots of interest

OLD Harlow property auctioneers Auction House West Essex and East Herts held its first sale on Monday – and was delighted at the response. Nine lots ranging from commercial and residential properties to land were on the catalogue for the auction which attracted more than 150 people to Fanhams Hall Hotel in Ware.

One of the lots was sold pre-auction for five per cent over the guide price. Four went under the hammer and a further two were tied up immediately after the sale.

Among the properties sold were a fish and chip shop in Baldock, which went for 10 per cent above the guide price, and a three-bedroom end-of-terrace property in need of some work.

Auction House proprietor Matt Dixon said: "It was fantastic to see so many people turn up. I honestly thought 80 cups of coffee would be enough!"

"I have got to say that even though banking criteria is tough, there is a lot of cash about."

Auction House will be holding sales every six weeks, the next scheduled for September 24.

"We are now currently looking for more lots and would be delighted to talk to anyone no matter what type of property they own – plots, land, commercial or residential," said Mr Dixon.

Celebrations at the Admiral as licensee Lesley marks 30 years

A LONG-serving landlady will celebrate three decades pulling pints at a popular Harlow pub with a live entertainment extravaganza this weekend.

Lesley Day, licensee at the White Admiral in Ward Hatch, is inviting regulars to help her celebrate her milestone anniversary in style on Saturday and Sunday with live music from local acts 2FB and Rat Pack tribute singer Wayne Morgan.

The two-day party will be a trip down memory lane for Lesley and husband Ray – pictured above – who is a relative newcomer to the Admiral Taverns-owned pub having joined his wife behind the bar 11 years ago.

"When I came to the White Admiral 30 years ago it was a younger person's pub," said Lesley. "I was 29 and it was full of people my age."

"All these years on and it's the same people here, it's just that it's become an older person's pub now!"

She added: "There'll be food, drinks and plenty of fun, but there'll be tears for sure. I always get emotional at these sorts of things."

"I really want to say thank you from the bottom of my heart to my customers. Without them and their support I wouldn't be in business here today."

Admiral Taverns' business development manager Colette Phillips congratulated Lesley on reaching the milestone.

"Lesley sums up everything that's special about traditional, community pubs. It's a place where everyone feels immediately at home," she said.

"And while another 30 years at the White Admiral might be a bit much to ask, we certainly hope Lesley and Ray have a wonderful weekend and carry on at the pub for at least another decade – or maybe even two!"

Independent Persons*Unpaid and voluntary positions - people to help us maintain high standards of Councillor Conduct

Councils have a duty to promote and maintain high standards of conduct by their elected Councillors and others. Harlow Council takes this duty very seriously and seeks a small number of people from outside of the Council to help with assessing complaints against Councillors and people co-opted to serve on Council Committees etc

What sort of people are we looking for? It's important that the Independent Person has the profile and experience that the community would recognise and respect as bringing an independent and informed perspective to the complaint process. If you have experience in developing or interpreting Codes of Conduct, that would be an advantage as would knowledge of local government and the need for propriety in the public sector.

In order to ensure your voice is truly independent, you must not be related to or be a close friend of a Councillor or Harlow District Council.

If you would like more information or want to discuss these positions informally and confidentially, please call Amanda Julian, Legal Services Manager, on (01279) 446072 or Nigel Delbarre, HR Manager on (01279) 446022. If you would like to apply online visit www.harlow.gov.uk/jobs or either email or phone Amanda Julian, Legal Services Manager (address below) with your details.

New drama falls short but shows potential

WHODUNITS are commonplace in the world of amateur dramatics, but this original production by Moot House Players promised something different by billing itself as a 'who's doing it'.

The 'it' is the tabloid hounding and subsequent cyber-stalking of newly-elected Labour MP Angela Chichester.

Writer/director Michael Branwell's first original play raises interesting questions about the price 'celebrities' pay at the hands of the press and the unsavoury ethics of smearing those in the spotlight while hiding behind the veil of anonymity.

But these issues, serious as they are, sat uncomfortably next to the play's light-hearted, occasionally farcical tone and got bogged down in a quagmire of stilted dialogue and unnecessarily extended and indulgent scenes.

review

THE NEW MP

Moot House Players, Moot Hall, Harlow

Set in the immediate aftermath of her election, unfortunate Angela is attacked from the moment she is elected to office. The miscarriage she suffers, brought on by the stress of the campaign, is splashed across fictional red-top the Daily Investigator and she is soon being damned if she does and damned if she doesn't.

Although the tabloid eventually publishes a front page apology for its actions, the campaign to bring her down then moves onto social networking sites, spearheaded by the venomous Hashtag Harry.

Angela is befriended by the Speaker of the House of Commons, Donald Turnley, who takes it upon himself to turn Poirot and unveil her mysterious cyber-stalker.

But although a clear thread took us from start to finish, the play often strayed off course at an odd tangent while certain scenes failed to work, most notably an over-extended one involving a TV repairman.

The cast certainly gave it their all, with Claire Quley a standout as the titular member for the fictional constituency of Coalhampton.

With some cutting and tweaks to the dialogue, The New MP has potential, but right now this is one candidate that would struggle to get elected.

Cast weather the storm on a visit to Dreamland

ANYONE dreaming of respite from the terrible summer weather should have been in the audience for Harlow Theatre Company's production of A Midsummer's Night Dream.

Shakespeare's comedy, directed by Jim Thompson, offered a joyful escape into a land of laughter, magic, colour and music.

The simplicity of the show was its strength. The multi-level set, designed by Trevor Paveley, was easily adapted from Athenian settings to the dreamy wood (though a little more foliage here would have helped) and back again. The clearly spoken lines also helped the audience follow the sometimes complicated plot and it was apparent that the cast understood the precise meaning of even the longest speeches.

Coupled with some stunning special

review

A MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM

Harlow Theatre Company, Victoria Hall Theatre, Old Harlow

effects, dream-like costumes (designed and created by Alison Paveley), creative lighting (Charles Rockey), excellent props (Sarah Bedwell) and the judicious use of sound effects and mood music – some of which was specially composed by Sarah Wiggins – the audience escaped into a magical world of fairies and midsummer dreams.

The cast was an interesting mix, with experienced actors rubbing shoulders with those taking to the stage for the first time.

The youngest were, of course, the Fairies played by Lily Drane, Grace Leitch, Isabella Baker and Summer Petherbridge-Mawdsley, all of whom danced and sang to great effect, helping to spin magic dreams.

Russell Parish as Oberon and Sophie Lloyd as Titania were impressive, particularly in dealing with some huge speeches while managing to keep our interest.

The four confused lovers were very well played by Lisa Gould (Hermia), Katie Miller (Helena), David Roberts (Lysander) and Cameron Marklew (Demetrius). Their interplay was admirably choreographed and their changing affections for each other convincing.

Katie Miller in particular gave an outstanding performance, expressing different emotions with skill and expert timing for such a young performer.

The funniest moments came with the Mechanicals, brilliantly led by Gavin Williams as Peter Quince. Kyle Jammers, Mitchell Rous, Jason Walker, Jake Hannam and Shane Whitworth made the most of the lines and had the audience rocking with laughter. Jammers, as Bottom, showed expert timing and characterisation as well as pathos when transformed into an ass and his performance had the audience spellbound.

Finally, Molly Jenkins as Robin Goodfellow, The Puck, gave a performance of charm and energy reflecting the magic that abounded throughout the wood.

The director and his team were extremely brave to tackle a difficult and technically complicated show as well as giving opportunities to inexperienced performers – it was a delight to see them come through. But having escaped into Victoria Hall for a few hours of dreaming, the reality of summer showed itself once again outside. It was still raining!

>>saturday Snot-nosed Oi! legends Peter & The Test-Tube Babies bring their tongue-in-cheek punk polemics to Harlow with support from anarchist gutter-snipes Anti-Establishment and local louts The Uppercuts, who have recently secured a slot at this year's Rebellion festival. The gig starts at 8pm and tickets cost £9.

FOLK is here to stay – but where would the likes of Fleet Foxes and Laura Marling be today without the trailblazing efforts of the two Balham-born songsmiths who dared unplug their guitars at the height of the garage/post-punk explosion of the early noughties?

Turin Brakes ushered in a quiet revolution of their own more than a decade ago, eschewing the bombastic rock revivalism of The Strokes et al in favour of winsome folk-pop introspection.

Scoring an instant hit with debut EP The Door, their swoonsome acoustic lullabies won them an army of fans across the globe and opened the door for a host of young troubadours fed up with rock's stranglehold over the indie charts.

Twelve years and five successful albums later, Ollie Knights and Gale Paridianjan are still going strong, returning to The Square tomorrow (Friday) for an intimate career retrospective, performing fan favourites from classic debut album The Optimist LP alongside their most recent tracks taken from the critically acclaimed 2010 effort Outbursts.

Doors open at 8pm and advance tickets cost £15.

A knight to remember

THE DARK KNIGHT RISES

certificate 12A, 2h44m

DIRECTOR Christopher Nolan completes his dark and brooding trilogy based on the caped crimefighter in suitably grandiose fashion, delivering not only the longest film in the series but also the most brutal, violent and satisfying.

Replete with more than an hour of footage shot on IMAX cameras to enhance picture quality and truly immerse the audience in the pulse-quickening action, The Dark Knight Rises ends Nolan's tenure on a high. It is eight years since Batman falsely assumed responsibility for the death of district attorney Harvey Dent (Aaron Eckhart) in order to bring the anti-crime legislation into effect and crush Gotham's criminal fraternity.

The caped crusader is a fading memory and crippled billionaire Bruce Wayne (Christian Bale) has become a virtual recluse, holed up in his manor with trusty butler Alfred (Sir Michael Caine). But an encounter with wily cat burglar Selina Kyle (Anne Hathaway) draws Bruce into the orbit of hulking terrorist Bane (Tom Hardy), who intends to destroy Gotham and its money-oriented denizens.

A dastardly plot unfolds but Bruce is physically and mentally unable to stop gangs of gun-toting mercenaries from overwhelming Commissioner Gordon (Gary Oldman) and the Gotham police force, including idealistic officer John Blake (Joseph Gordon-Levitt).

As Bane's uprising gathers momentum, Bruce turns to technical genius Lucius Fox (Morgan Freeman) and loyal board member Miranda Tate (Marion Cotillard) to protect his beloved Wayne Enterprises. Alas, money can only go so far and Bruce must don his cowl one final time, putting his life on the line to save the residents of Gotham, who had previously turned their backs on him. It's to his credit that Nolan resisted the urge to jump on the 3D bandwagon for Batman's swansong. Certainly, the breathlessly orchestrated action sequences, including the spectacular opening aboard a huge C-130 Hercules transport plane, would draw bigger gasps in the eye-popping format.

However, Nolan has always focused on the characters and their twisted psychologies, and he puts all of them and us through the emotional wringer in this final chapter, co-written by his brother Jonathan.

Christian Bale brings typical intensity to the title role and the tender bond with Sir Michael Caine's lackey continues to tug heartstrings.

Thankfully, Tom Hardy's electronic vocals have been improved since the early trailers for the film so his masked villain is largely intelligible while Anne Hathaway slinks away from Michelle Pfeiffer's memorable portrayal of Catwoman but still purrs some choice one-liners.

The Dark Knight Rises should satisfy ardent fans of the previous two instalments while delivering all of the slam-bang thrills required of a muscular summer blockbuster. Action sequences are adrenaline-pumping from the bruising fist fights, which fully warrant the film's 12A certificate, to high-speed chases aboard the nifty two-wheeled Bat-Pod and the introduction of a state-of-the-art stealth aircraft nicknamed The Bat.

"The Batman has to come back," whispers Commissioner Gordon at one point, echoing the sentiments of fans around the world.

Quick Tips to Maximise your Sale

First impressions are not only important when selling your home, they are absolutely critical. When people come to view a property for the first time, they are unlikely to be scrutinising the unseen. They are simply trying to get a feel for the property. They will be bombarded with mostly visual impressions, many of which you can manage.

It's inexpensive, effective, and looks good. Do make sure you polish any chrome as well, using lime scale remover if necessary.

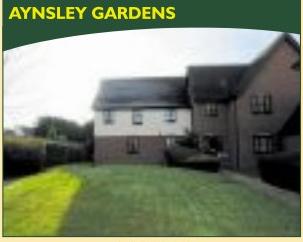

Do declutter. Buyers want to imagine themselves living there, so don't distract them with too much of your own stuff, although a cosy home is generally more appealing than a clinical one!

For example, if your kitchen is looking tired, it can easily be spruced up with new cabinet doors. Even just replacing the handles can look good, or you could even go further and fit a new worktop. Kitchen flooring which may have passed its best is also usually quite inexpensive to replace.

Outside, flowerbeds can instantly be given a new lease of life with a generous helping of shredded tree bark compost. Freshly-mown lawns with neat edges look great, as do paths which have recently been weeded. Patio areas are more appealing when they look like they are enjoyed regularly so it's worth having your garden furniture out rather than packed away. The same applies to children's play equipment if you are selling a family home.

Bathrooms can look almost as good as the day they were fitted with a bit of work on the grouting. Hack out any discoloured grout between the tiles or sealant around the wash basins, baths and showers, and replace with new.

The key is a neat, but lived-in look, which will appeal to the heart as well as the head!

This week sees the start of the government's latest initiative to get finance available to businesses and households. An £80bn fund is on offer to banks to tap into at very low rates which its hoped will stimulate some economic activity. Early signs are promising, we've seen a raft of rate reductions across all sectors, but most importantly for those wanting to borrow 85%-90%.....if this is you speak to us now....IT COULD BE THE BEST TIME THIS YEAR TO MAKE THAT MOVE!!!!!!

We will search for the best mortgage for you fast - and we don't charge

At genesis we're different. We're independent. That means we have access to the whole range of mortgage products so we can find a mortgage tailor made for you.

Taking it to the Max

By Andy Enright

BIG pick-up trucks have enjoyed quite some popularity in the UK, buoyed by a tax loophole that meant company car drivers were quids in if they chose what was deemed a commercial vehicle over a typical private light goods vehicle.

That novelty quickly wore off as many realised that they would much rather be flying up the outside lane in a BMW 320d than lumbering along the crawler lane in a truck with suspension that seemed to be modelled on the kinematics of a bouncy castle.

Isuzu rather missed the boat in the 'luxury truck' sector but although the D-Max might have arrived a bit late to capitalise on the sales bubble, for genuine tradesmen who need a solid workhorse there's a lot to like here. The Isuzu D-Max is powered by a highly fuel-efficient 2.5-litre twin-turbo common rail diesel engine, available with the choice of either six-speed manual or five-speed automatic transmissions.

Test Drive: Isuzu D-Max

It also introduces a 'shift-on-the-fly' system, allowing the driver to adjust between two-wheel and four-wheel drive modes while travelling at speeds of up to 60 mph.

The front suspension comprises an independent double wishbone with coil-spring setup while the rear suspension is made up of over slung leaf-springs installed above a special long span rear axle.

Isuzu claims this offers better driving comfort. Like its predecessor – the Rodeo – the D-Max is built on a rugged ladder-framed chassis but there the similarities end. The i-GRIP

(Isuzu Gravity Responsive Intelligent Platform) underpinnings of the D-Max are 42 per cent stiffer than the old Rodeo chassis, helped by improved cross bracing at the rear which offers superior stability under load and when towing. Isuzu offers the D-Max with four specification levels and, for the first time for Isuzu in the UK, with an extended cab body configuration featuring rear-opening side-access panels, joining the single and double cab variants. The entry level Isuzu D-Max is a single cab 4x2 derivative and above that are the double cab variants.

As well as being the most comprehensively developed, most efficient and most refined Isuzu pick-up to date, the D-Max is also a highly capable load-lugger. It has a three-tonne (braked) towing capacity and a payload capacity of 1,000 kg. The entry level Isuzu D-Max, priced from £14,499 for the single cab 4x2 derivative, offers a decent slug of standard equipment including air conditioning, daytime running lights, electric windows and front, side and curtain airbags. Go for the Eiger double cab (from £18,499) and you'll get projector headlamps, Bluetooth and iPod connectivity, 16-inch alloy wheels and body-coloured bumpers. Plumb instead for the Yukon double cab (from £18,999) and features include a leather steering wheel with cruise and audio controls, a six-speaker sound system, chrome exterior detailing and 1-inch alloys. At the top of the range is the flagship Utah model which is fitted with leather upholstery, heated front seats and automatic climate control. The exterior treatment includes roof bars and rear parking sensors. Priced from £21,499, the Utah still looks very competitive value when pried against the Toyota Hilux or the Volkswagen Amarok.

We await full economy and insurance figures for the D-MAX but if they are in line with the outgoing Rodeo, they should be competitive. Residual values have long held up firm, buoyed by Isuzu's reputation for mechanical durability.

The D-Max promises to be a breakthrough model for Isuzu. The Rodeo has paved the way for the D-Max to strike out, registering growing sales year-on-year throughout its lifespan, with 2011 being recorded as the the peak calendar year for Rodeo sales, eclipsing some better known rivals. The D-Max offers more refinement, improved engine efficiency and far better equipment levels.

The Isuzu D-Max isn't yet thought of in the same bracket as the Toyota Hilux, Mitsubishi L200 or Nissan Navara but it deserves to be. It won't have a straight run at them though. Ford's much improved Ranger will prove a serious impediment to the D-Max improving the old Rodeo's market share.

It's worth trying one, though. Sometimes the less obvious choice pays big dividends.

Scrap

End of the road for your vehicle?

Responsible drivers scrap their vehicles at an Authorised Treatment Facility (ATF).

Because only an ATF can legally scrap a vehicle.
That means any pollutants will be made safe before it's recycled in an environmentally friendly way.

What's more, for certain types of vehicle you'll get a DVLA approved Certificate of Destruction (CoD).
A CoD proves that the ATF has told DVLA your vehicle has been scrapped and so is no longer your responsibility. www.direct.gov.uk/motorring

End of the road? Get over it and move on with your local ATF:

B & T Motor Salvage

We offer free collection, on the same day if necessary, using our own recovery vehicles and issue a Certificate of Destruction from the Department of Vehicle Licensing Authority via our direct link to their website. Payment per vehicle negotiable.

Your CV

When you send your CV off to a potential employer, remember that you won't be the only one. Hundreds of other people could be applying for the job as well.

So what are you going to do to make you stand out from the crowd? Why should an employer take a chance on you instead of someone else?

Your CV is your first real chance to sell yourself to a potential employer. Most employers will scan through a CV in about 30 seconds so you need to grab their attention from the start - and make them want to invite you for an interview.

There are five main areas to consider when writing your CV:

- Make sure your CV looks the part. Your CV should look clean and tidy - don't scrawl it out on a piece of A4 paper. If you haven't got access to a PC or printer, ask a friend or use your local library. Use a good quality paper and steer clear of fancy borders and front covers.
- Watch out for silly spelling and grammar mistakes. They make you look lazy and show employers that you don't really care. It's not difficult to do a spell check on your PC and if you're really stuck then don't just guess, reach for a dictionary. Get a friend to read through your CV for you - a second opinion is always useful.
- Make sure your CV is well organised. When you list your previous jobs, make sure the dates are correct and try not to leave any gaps. If you took time out to go travelling then say so - employers won't mark you down just because you've tried something new.
- Don't waffle. Remember that employers don't have time to read every word of your CV. Long paragraphs and sentences put people off, so try bullet-points to break up text. Make sure your CV is no longer than two pages long - employers don't want your life history, they just want to see that you've got what it takes to do the job.
- Don't list any failures. Employers have enough trouble finding someone who is right for the job - they don't need help finding reasons not to employ you. If you have to include a mistake from your past, make sure you show the employer that you learnt something from the experience.

Keep it simple

Personal details

Start off with your full name, address, home and mobile phone numbers and email address . If you are offered an interview, the employer will want to get hold of you so give him as many options as possible.

Summary/professional profile

This is the No1 area for selling yourself. Set out your main skills and personal qualities but keep it interesting and tight - one paragraph should do to cover everything.

If you want to list them now make sure you include their name, job title, postal & e-mail address and contact phone numbers. Alternatively, just put "Available on request" so the employer knows to follow up references at a later date.

Add a covering letter

The main aim of a covering letter is to encourage an employer to give you a chance. You want them to read your CV, so sell it to them. You should always enclose a covering letter when applying for a job - most employers won't consider you unless you do.

A covering letter should let the employer know why you are interested in the job and why you think you can do it.

The hints and tips below should point you in the right direction:

- Keep it simple. A covering letter should be short and to the point - no more than six paragraphs.
- Mention the job. If you are replying to an advert, mention what the job is and where you saw it. The company may be advertising for other positions and it may not be clear which job you are applying for.
- Sell yourself. Explain why you are the perfect candidate for the job. Show off your strengths and experience. Refer to your CV - if it goes missing then at least an employer will know that you've sent it.
- Check it for mistakes. A silly spelling mistake in a covering letter is likely to cost you your chance of getting an interview. Also, make sure it is addressed to the right person in the right department.

A covering letter can be just as important as a CV in getting you an interview. It's your first point of contact with your potential employer - so make it count.

Interests & hobbies

Briefly list what you get up to in your spare time. Put down any positions you hold in clubs or associations, along with any responsibilities and achievements.

References

Make sure you have at least two people (including one from your previous or current job) who will tell an employer what a thoroughly nice person you are and what a potential asset to the company you would be.

Josh named in England squad

>>basketball

A TEENAGE basketball player from Harlow is set to be in action for England today at the FIBA (Federation of International Basketball Association) Europe U-16 Championship.

Josh Steel, (15) from The Hoo, is part of the 12-strong England squad for the A division in Latvia and Lithuania. England play Turkey today (July 19), followed by games against Italy (July 20) and Croatia (July 21).

All of these games take place at Ventspils in Latvia.

His father Alex said: "He is going a year early. It is for those born in 1996 [Josh was born in 1997].

ON THE ATTACK: Josh Steel, left, has been named in the England squad for Europe U-16 Championships games in Latvia and Lithuania (s)

MORE than 900 Harlow schoolchildren have had their appetite whetted for the forthcoming London 2012 Olympics.

The much-awaited event starts in six days but youngsters from various junior schools got the chance to experience sports being played at the Games at a series of events held throughout the town. The highlight was a mini-Olympics event held at and organised by Church Langley Primary School.

This gave younger children (from Years one and two) the chance to throw, run and catch. All the activities were Olympic or Paralympic sports.

Among the events children took part in were trampolining, wheelchair basketball, gymnastics and table tennis.

Meanwhile, Year 5 and 6 children from mats and practice the sport.

A football day at Mark Hall Sportcentre saw 150 Year 3 and 4 pupils receive coaching before playing in a friendly competition.

More than 250 children from Years 3, 4, 5 and 6 then took part in galas at the swimming pools at Burn Mill and Stewards.

The two-week sporting extravaganza was marked by a torch relay.

The final leg of this journey went from Kingsmoor to Pear Tree Mead and Latton Green to Henry Moore primary schools.

The events were all co-ordinated by Harlow School Sports Partnership whose partnership manager George Gardiner said: "The two weeks have been amazing. Over 900 children have taken part from across all age ranges at schools.

"The support we have received from other schools, clubs and coaches has been exceptional and we could not have done it without them, so a massive thanks goes to all who have supported us."

Wet weather curtails cricket

>>cricket

BOTH of Harlow Cricket Club and Harlow Town Cricket Club's first teams were prevented from playing by the bad weather on Saturday.

Harlow's game at Orsett in division one of the Shepherd Neame Essex League was abandoned.

Town's match at Woodford Green in division three of the Shepherd Neame Essex League was also cancelled due to the wet weather.

The two club's lower senior teams were also not in action because of the rain.

Potter Street's two teams also did not play.

Virtually the entire Herts & Essex Cricket League programme was wiped out by rain.

Rugby club hosts tag rugby contest

>>rugby

HARLOW Rugby Club played host to the London North RFU YAZOO tag rugby regional heat competition.

The 12-school event at the Ram Gorse club in Elizabeth Way was won by West Leigh School in Leigh-on-Sea, Essex.

The event was for Year 5 and 6 boys and girls (aged 9 to 11).

Event organiser James Platt said: "It was a good venue and the people at the club were very helpful."

Yazoo and the RFU work with the police's children's charity, Child Victims of Crime. The charity supports more than 600 police staff a year to coach tag rugby in primary schools.

Boss Chapman eyes centre-halves

HAWKS boss Danny Chapman is running the rule over two central defenders. Chapman is looking to replace experienced centre-half Ryan Kirby who left last month to join fellow Ryman League division one north club Grays Athletic.

Liam Thomas, who played at Harlow under previous boss

Anthony Anstead, and Dholland Zola, has been taking part in Hawks' pre-season training programme. Chapman said: "They have not signed. I need to see them in games first. I know Liam quite well from when I was playing at the club [around three years ago] and he was at Aveley last year."

"We had a trial game [in May] after the league season finished and Dholland stood out as a good player." Meanwhile, Chapman is confident Reece Dobson can replace the gap left by Dave Cowley. Cowley mainly operated on the left wing. Chapman said: "Reece was excellent at the end of season last year and I have high expectations of him."

Harlow start their pre-season campaign at Essex Senior League side Takeley next Tuesday. "They are not a bad side and it will be a good test for us," said Chapman. Sawbridgeworth Town then host the Hawks on July 31.

Tough start for Harlow Town FC

HARLOW Town FC have been handed a tough start to the new season after the release of the Ryman League division one north fixtures.

Danny Chapman's men will begin the campaign with a trip to Heybridge Swifts on Saturday August 18.

Harlow then host promotion favourites Aveley, relegated from the Ryman premier division last season, on Tuesday August 21.

On Bank Holiday Monday, Cowley will return to Barrows Farm in the league with his new team AFC Sudbury.

Witham Town, promoted from the Essex Senior League as champions, will host Harlow in an Essex derby on Saturday September 1.

"Aveley have come down and they are going to be a good side," said Chapman.

He added: "Sudbury [on August 27] are paying really good money this year but there are no easy games in this league."

Cowley latest in Hawks exodus

HARLOW Town FC have suffered another blow with the news that midfielder Dave Cowley has quit to join Ryman division one north rivals AFC Sudbury.

The Harlow-based player had only returned to the club towards the end of last season after quitting Grays Athletic.

He scored six goals in 12 starts after re-joining the club in February.

A firm fans' favourite Cowley was previously the Supporters' Player of the Year in the 2010-11 season at Barrows Farm, when the Hawks reached the play-off semi-finals.

Only last week Hawks boss Danny Chapman told the Star he was desperate to keep hold of the talented midfielder.

However, Cowley has opted for a new challenge.

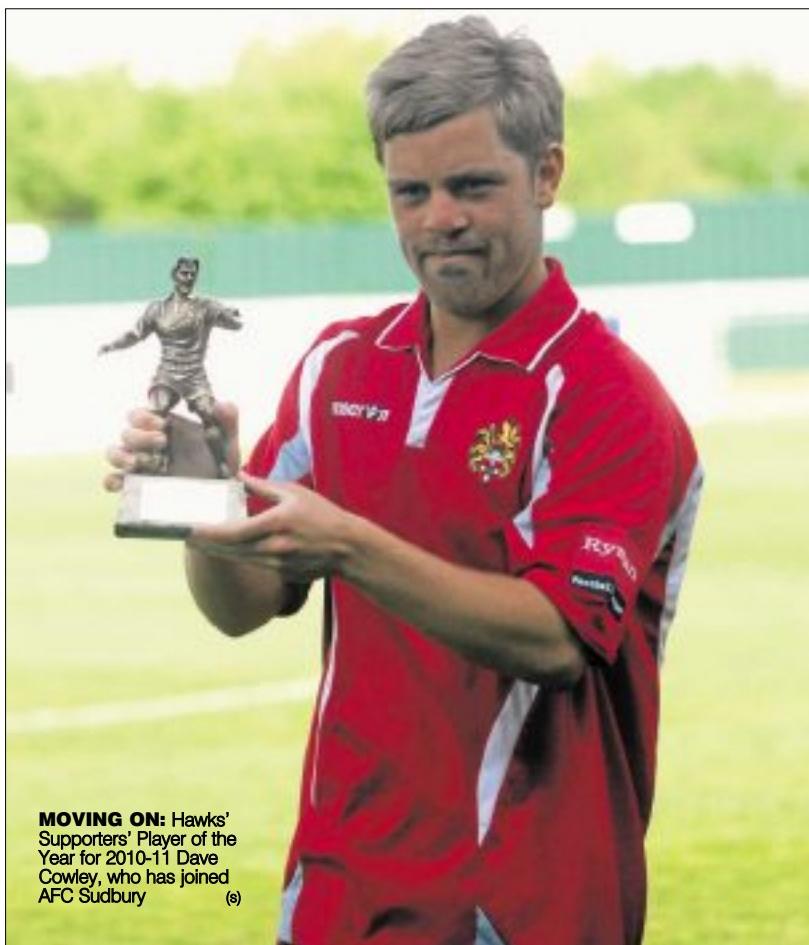

Chapman said: "Dave is a fantastic player. We could not come to agreement on personal terms on money and that is why he has left."

"He has his own life. Dave wanted a figure which I was not willing to pay."

Cowley is the latest in a line of departures from Barrows Farm, as the club push on with plans to bring more youngsters through the ranks and into the first team.

Striker Danny Elmes, who scored several goals at the end of last season after arriving from League Two Northampton Town, has quit.

Centre-half Ryan Kirby and winger Luke Marshall went to Grays, while assistant boss Christian Wheeler has switched to Ryman division one north rivals Waltham Abbey.

MOVING ON: Hawks' Supporters' Player of the Year for 2010-11 Dave Cowley, who has joined AFC Sudbury (s)

A club spokesman said: "Dave Cowley has joined AFC Harlow Town can confirm that Dave for his contribution and wish him all the best."

Town over spent on under-performing players

DANNY Chapman has confessed the Hawks over spent on players over the last two seasons.

With one of the biggest budgets in Ryman division one north, Harlow gambled – and failed – on trying to win promotion to the Ryman premier division.

The club has launched a new approach for the 2012-13 campaign as it has cut back on signing players by paying the top dollar by non-League standards.

Since Platinium Sports

Management took over the running of the club in 2010, the Hawks splashed the cash to try and go up.

Harlow came close in the 2010-11 campaign when they were beaten 4-2 at Wingate & Finchley in the play-off semi-finals.

The North London outfit went on to win promotion to the Ryman premier.

The Hawks were also in contention for much of last season for a play-off spot, but slipped up at the tail end of the campaign and finished 7th.

Hawks boss Chapman said: "Nothing comes for free but one of the big things over the last two seasons is that we have over-paid players."

"This year we are not going to do that. It is a case of getting value for money. They will get what I think they are worth. I do not want players who are just there for the point note."

This has prompted several players to quit Harlow, including Danny Elmes, Luke Marshall and Dave Cowley, in recent weeks.

GB star's visit

FORMER Great Britain wheelchair player Lee Welch played basketball with young pupils at Church Langley School in Harlow on Tuesday.

The player, who lives in Ware, also spoke to children about the forthcoming Paralympic Games in London on a visit to the Church Langley Way primary.

• HARLOW Council are close to securing a prestigious deal for the German badminton team to use the Leisurezone facility in First Avenue during the Olympic Games.

Teams required

TEAMS are still needed for the 2012 Star Canons Brook Golf Club Pro-am tournament.

This annual competition takes place on Wednesday July 25.

To register a team, contact the Harlow club on (01279) 418357.

The Elizabeth Way club hosted the prestigious Essex Amateur Championships over the weekend.

Watching Harlow's GB hopeful Andrew Osagie at Crystal Palace for the Star was ANDREW FRANZAK

HARLOW Athletic Club member Andrew Osagie is still some way behind the world's best 800m runner, Kenyan David Rudisha, whose fastest time this season is around three seconds quicker than anything the Essex 24-year-old has clocked.

Does this fact worry Osagie ahead of the Olympics?

"Not so much really. He's a really strong runner, he's a fast runner," said Osagie.

"He's three seconds ahead when he's time trialling. In championship races things might be slightly different - you don't know who's going to be feeling good."

"Anything can happen. I'm just looking forward to getting myself into the best shape I can and doing what I like to do best which is to race people. That's all I can do." He was also unwilling to get ahead of himself with talk of an Olympic final.

"I've got three more races between now and the final ahead of me. I've got one race in Monaco. At the moment I'm not focused further than the heats and then the semi-final in the Olympics - they are the races I've really got to nail."

"Then I'll have a day off and can think about the final if I get through."

Speaking about the better health of 800m running in this country, Osagie said: "We haven't had a very good recent history, so I'm very happy Britain's 800m is looking up."

"As long as we can perform on the day, we've got three guys going to the Olympics with world class times and we're all looking to push ourselves when we're there."

The former Leventhorpe School student took a great deal out of a recent Great Britain training trip to Africa, running at altitude.

"We trained well out in Kenya. We all really get on. It's a weird atmosphere - everyone wants to get on, everyone wants to do well. I know Michael's [Rimmer] been training well so we've got a great team going forward."

"As an athlete you look at your own performance - if I'm ahead of Michael or not, to be the best you can that's what spurs you on, not looking at what others are doing."

"I'm fortunate enough to be at the front of people like Michael."

the home Games, you come here it's a quarter of the number of people who are going to be at the Olympic Stadium.

"There's a massive buzz, a massive cheer for all the British athletes so I'm looking forward to getting to the Games."

"I think in terms of the Olympics, [Crystal Palace] was the perfect preparation, I know where I am. I'm looking forward to getting a bit more training in, which is what we've always aimed for."

"I've got one more race left and hopefully I'll be in shape by the time it comes to the Olympics."

"My aim is just to do as well as I can at the Olympics, every single race I run I try to beat everyone so wherever that gets me, whether it gets me through the heats to the semi-finals or final that's what I want to be aiming to do."

Despite leading for a long spell, Osagie was not too disappointed to miss out on first place at Crystal Palace.

He said: "It was almost the perfect pace for me - that's why I was at the front."

"In the last few races I've run I've kind of been stuck in the mix and come through at the end so I wanted to try things out to be at the front and see what it's like to be leading in the Diamond League in front of a big crowd."

"I think hopefully I've given a good show for the people who came out today."

Different tactics an Olympic sign?

ANDREW Osagie decided to go all out for victory at Crystal Palace, taking on the field by bursting to the front with under a lap to go - something he hasn't done in previous races where he has either sat in the pack or come from the back.

Was this a test run for the Olympics?

When quizzed by the Star after the race, which saw him finish third behind Poland's Adam Kszczot and Job Kinyor (Kenya), the 24-year-old Harlow Athletic club member said: "I can't tell you how I'm going to race during the Olympics!

"I know I'm going to be a lot stronger and a lot faster by the time we come to the Olympic Games."

"Everything we've done, all the training, the breaks we've had at the right times after the trials, is coming together."

"We had a week off trying to build into the Games - the Olympics are the main thing, these couple of races are just testers."

"I'm feeling really good now about the Olympics after booking my place at the trials."

I've relaxed and enjoyed myself and come to these races to be part of the home crowd - it's unbelievable.

"By the time the pace settled I just wanted to keep the pace strong. I'm the best in races with a strong pace like that."

"Unfortunately today in the last 50 or 60m my legs were heavy - it was a bit frustrating but I looked behind and there was a big gap between me and the rest of the guys."

"I'm in a good position, I was predicted to come third or fourth in that race - I thought I could have won."

Not 2012 medal potential

IPC 2013 Championships."

Only three weeks ago Chiassaro was ranked No.5 in the world but has now dropped down to 15th. "I am 200ths of a second off the top five," said the former Mark Hall School student.

This Paralympic blow has made Chiassaro, who regularly coaches young disabled athletes at Mark Hall Sportcentre, even more determined to not only star at the 2013 IPC World Championships, but also win a medal in the 2016 Paralympic Games in Brazil.

He hopes to compete in the T54 100m, 200m and 400m events.

Chiassaro was a keen basketball player when he was younger, but has taken the athletics world by storm since he took up the sport three years ago.

Despite this setback, Chiassaro will battle on to achieve his Paralympic dream.

"I'm not going to give up. In three years I have gone to No.1 in the country," he said. "What they are saying does not make sense. They don't think I can medal. But it does not say in the criteria you need to be medal potential to be selected. It's crazy. But I'm not quitting."

A spokeswoman for UK Athletics said she could not comment on individual cases but added: "It seems very harsh but athletes with a realistic medal chance have been picked for London. Obviously it's also based on world rankings. I'm not sure what Richard's world ranking is at the moment [No.15]. It's hard but it's not an easy team to walk into."

Against a world-class field, Chiassaro came third in the 100m race at Crystal Palace on Friday, just behind the world champion, despite carrying an infection.

Family watch GB ace

"It's the first time ever they've watched me - they've certainly left it until the last minute!"

"When I first started running I said to my mum 'you can come and watch me when I'm in the Olympics' - I think she took that literally!"

"It's been a while because I missed Beijing, but I'm happy for them to be here."

"They've got tickets for the Olympics so it's a pre-run for them for what it's going to be like because they've never been before."

"I didn't want them to get lost in the [Olympic] village - which they probably would knowing them."

"It spurs me on to have them watching, it doesn't make me more nervous."

He added: "You don't think about the exact people in the crowd when you're running, you just think about the race."

"Knowing they were there in the back straight, I'm glad they've come to watch me and at least see me get to the front and see me try to win."

Osagie will line up in his heat in the 800m in 18 days' time at the Olympic Stadium in Stratford.

It's a family affair for GB runner

SATURDAY'S race at Crystal Palace was the first time that Andrew Osagie's family had watched him race live competitively, writes ANDREW FRANCZAK.

The Harlow Athletic Club member was delighted his parents – Andrew Osagie snr and Katrina Bessent – were in the crowd, along with brother Lloyd and sister Elisher.

They had travelled down from their home in Northbrooks, Harlow to support him.

Osagie told the Star after the race: "For the first time my mum and came to watch me race so I had to find them in the stands [after the race]. It was good."

"My mum said 'well done', and that she's proud of me – but even if I'd come last she would still say 'well done'."

Monaco next for in-form Osagie

ANDREW Osagie is looking forward to his trip to the millionaires' playground of Monaco for his last Samsung Diamond League meeting before he races at the Olympics in 18 days' time.

The Harlow Athletic Club member was third in the 800m at the Diamond League meeting at Crystal Palace on Saturday. Osagie clocked 1 minute 45.21 seconds. Pole Adam Kszcot won the race in 1:44.49.

Second was Kenyan Job Kinyar in 1:44.60.

Osagie (24), of Northbrooks in Harlow, produced a brilliant first 600m and led in 1:18.09, but his rivals provided a quicker finale to snatch first and second from him. "I was satisfied with the performance today if you look at the start list and the times I was probably supposed to come third or fourth in that race anyway," he told the Star. "I tried to take control and running well and finishing strong, but unfortunately the two guys went past me."

World Record holder David Rudisha did not compete at Crystal Palace, part of the London Grand Prix meeting and shown on BBC1.

The start of the Olympic Games is a week away and Osagie can barely contain his excitement.

"I'm really excited about

Not medal potential!

'Crazy' reason why Chiassaro was not picked for 2012

PARALYMPIC hopeful Richard Chiassaro has been told by UK Athletics that he was not 'medal potential' and that was why he was dropped by Great Britain for London 2012.

The Harlow wheelchair athlete was then asked to represent GB in the London Disability Grand Prix at Crystal Palace on Friday!

As revealed in last week's Star, top-ranked Brit Chiassaro, pictured receiving a gold medal for Team GB earlier this year, was surprisingly omitted from the 49-man squad for London 2012 by the British Paralympic Association (BPA).

The 30-year-old, of Seymours, appealed over his axe by the BPA but his times would reportedly have given him a top five spot at three of the last four Paralympic Games.

Chiassaro also represented GB in the BT Paralympic World Cup in May, winning the gold medal in 15.04 seconds.

The BPA has not entered a Great Britain athlete in the T54 100m, concentrating on categories where it has a better chance of a medal.

The disappointed athlete told the Star: "I have just been told my appeal has been turned down. UK Athletics phoned me to clarify a few things. They said I am not medal potential. They are saying my times made me eligible for selection. That does not mean I am selected."

"I have to accept the fact that I am not in it and focus on the next World
